The 2010

Fit-Friendly Company

Honor Roll

Sitting in front of a computer for eight hours. Attending back-to-back meetings. Conducting conference calls. Working late. Racing against deadlines. Employees in all types of organizations and companies face these obstacles to staying physically active and eating right.

But some employers overcome these challenges —promoting a wellness culture by providing support to employees and implementing numerous healthy cultural changes.

ABOUT THE START! FIT-FRIENDLY COMPANIES PROGRAM

The American Heart Association recognizes employers as Fit-Friendly Companies for creating a culture of physical activity in the workplace. We reward companies for their progressive leadership and highlight their concern for their staff. By doing so, more companies will follow your lead and employ physical activity practices such as:

- Providing walking routes.
- Promoting walking programs, online newsletters and tracking tools to motivate employees.
- Allowing staff to wear athletic shoes in the workplace on designated “sneaker days.”

Use tools like our free Start! Walking Program to create a healthier workplace environment.

Visit startwalkingnow.org.

CHECK OUT THE PERKS

Adult Americans spend most of their waking hours at work — many of them while sitting at a desk. This makes them vulnerable to health risks associated with inactive lifestyles. Studies suggest that by starting a worksite physical activity program and promoting a culture of activity, you can:

- Increase productivity.
- Reduce absenteeism.
- Lower turnover.
- Reduce healthcare costs.

Besides benefiting companies, a healthier workplace helps employees live healthier, longer lives. What better benefit could you provide your employees than that?

THE START! PROGRAM IS LOADED WITH BENEFITS

Companies’ immediate benefits include:

- Employee access to program resources, including the free Start! Walking Program and the MyStart! Online tracking tool at startwalkingnow.org.
- Materials to help promote employee wellness programs.
- Newsletter templates for internal distribution to employees.
- Consultation on CPR and automated external defibrillator programs. Visit heart.org/cpr.

RECEIVING RECOGNITION

It’s easy to gain recognition for the work your company is doing to help fight heart disease. To find out, visit our online Start! Fit-Friendly application/renewal site at <http://ffc.heart.org>.

An American Heart Association expert panel reviews your application and awards recognition to your company.

Each year, you can renew your Fit-Friendly status by revisiting our Fit-Friendly site at <http://ffc.heart.org>.
